Dawn broke this morning on a lone lome plane, standing stlent and mel-One Hundred and Fifty-second street police station. It arrived as a highly material witness, and remained betause Lieut, Maher wouldn't let it go IWRY AEAIN.

The trouble started when John Willares and penates up to a new home at No. $15 West One Hundred and Sevwilliams says he was to pay Eberlein is for the gross job, but Eberlein as-erts that he has taken three memory lystem courses and that he has a per-ect recollection that Williams prom-sed to pay $37 for the transfer, with s extra for the plane.

Anyway, late yesterday, when all the Williams impedimenta except the plane and been safely holsted and stowed, Eberlein suggested that he get a timpse of some Williams money. That was the moment when things began to happen and even the arrival of Poiceman Murphy helped not at all, for Eberlein whipped up, and down the street went the Williams plane, Willame and fat Murphy being a poor lecond and third.

Eberiein drove to the station and told lis troubles to Maher. Where are your witnesses?" asked daher, who prefers the demonstrated ng hastily. Ten minutes later he re-urned. Behind him came three husky entlemen bearing in the Williams in-There's my witness!" said Eberlein.

Maher scratched his head. He was iling out of the witness when Williams brived, puffing and seven times madder than he had been at home.

"I want that man arrested!" he denanded, pointing at Eberlein. "He nole my piano!" The upshot was that in Night Court Eberiein faced Magistrate Butts, with Williams as the complaining witness. The Magistrate emulated Solomon, He seard Williams's story; then waved his sand and said that it was quite-ahem! -apparent to him-ahem!-that Mr. Eberein was not trying to steal the plane of Mr. Williams. Mr. Eberlein, he said.

Mr. Eberlein went with alacrity. He went so hastily, in fact, that when Williams renewed his plaint and when Magistrate said, after all, he b leved he'd just talk to Eberlein an trrange for an amicable settlemen here wasn't any Eberlein.

Then Williams tried to get Maher him take the plane away, but Mahe he had no order from anybody t te it go and until he did get an order to wasn't going to let it go. Williams says that he's going to get that plano to-day if he has to appeal to
